LBJ Policy Research Workshop

Policies for a world in crisis

Call for submissions

Deadline extended: October 27, 2022

The LBJ School of Public Affairs at The University of Texas at Austin will host their first annual “Policy Research Workshop” on January 20th, 2023. This year’s workshop’s theme is “Policies for a World in Crisis” and will be held in person at LBJ School.

In recent years, a series of overlapping crises have posed challenges to political decision-makers across various policy fields. They have faced a public health, social, and educational crisis triggered by the Covid-19 pandemic; a crisis of international security with the outbreak of violent conflict and the intensification of security dilemmas in Europe, Africa, and Asia; an economic crisis of dramatically rising inflation rates and public debt; a food security crisis; an energy crisis; and the acceleration of the climate crisis driven by rising temperatures and extreme weather phenomena. Academic research that is policy relevant and suggests ways to address these crises and their consequences is needed now more than ever.

This workshop will provide an opportunity for PhD students engaged in policy-relevant research to present their work in an interdisciplinary academic setting that explores how academia can develop and promote policy-relevant research to offer solutions to pressing policy problems. Participants will obtain feedback from faculty and graduate student discussants and have an opportunity to network with policy researchers. We encourage submissions of working papers from all social science disciplines, as long as the research is policy-relevant and analyzes one or more of the myriad of crises the world faces today. We particularly invite students from underrepresented backgrounds to submit their work.

Submission Details: Please submit an abstract (maximum 500 words) in PDF format to lbj.research.workshop@austin.utexas.edu. Clearly state the policy relevance and implications of your work. Please note the key dates below.
